Program Fee Bills

IFSA-Butler will send a single bill for the entire program fee, which includes tuition, services and housing. Students who opt for independent housing will not be charged the housing component of the program fee.

Tuition

Our tuition fees are based on the arts and social science tuition charged by the host university. However, some universities charge a higher tuition for disciplines such as science, engineering and other specialty areas involving laboratory, studio or field work. We pass the charges for special subjects along to the student as a tuition differential. Tuition differential fees are based on previous years' costs and are subject to change.

Housing

The housing component of our program fee is based on the average cost of local student self-catering accommodation, usually a shared room in a regular dormitory, apartment or house without any extra features.

When a student is assigned to full-service housing, such as a residential college, there may be a housing supplemental charge for full service facilities. These fees are estimates based on previous years' costs and are subject to change.

Please see program materials or contact your IFSA-Butler program advisor for independent housing options and procedures.

† Housing Deposit

All students are required to pay a housing deposit of $300. This payment is in addition to the program fee but is due on the same date. The deposit is held separately from the program fee and should be paid separately. The deposit is refunded to the student after the program, less any damages, fines, or outstanding debts in the student's name.

Supplemental Charges Notes

Charges listed below are approximate costs and may be subject to change. Any fees over these approximate costs will be billed to the responsible party as we receive them from the host university.

1. Queen's University Belfast

A higher tuition of approximately $1,100 per semester is charged for students enrolled in a science program.

2. National University of Ireland, Galway

An additional fee of approximately $4,200 per year is charged for full-time enrollment in science courses. Students taking less than a full load of science courses will be billed on a pro rata basis. For example, a student enrolled in 60 percent arts courses and 40 percent science courses will be charged a special fee made up of 60 percent arts fee and 40 percent science fee.

3. Trinity College Dublin

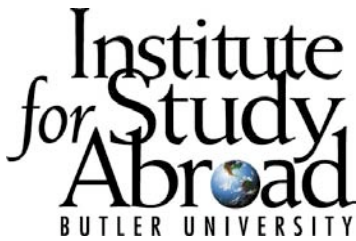

Trinity charges higher fees for music courses. The surcharge is approximately $5,200.

4. University College Cork

Higher fees are charged for science, engineering and music courses and the Certificate in Political Issues in Ireland Today, depending on the number of such courses in which the student is enrolled. These surcharges are approximately $2,000 per semester, but the certificate program will be considerably less.

5. University College Dublin

Students not housed in university residence halls will be guaranteed IFSA-Butler program accommodation with a supplemental fee of approximately $1,000 for fall semester, $1,000 for spring semester and $2,000 for the year.

These figures are designed to assist students with financial planning but are only estimates based on past students' experiences at an exchange rate of $1.59 to €1 in the Republic of Ireland and $1.95 to 1 GBP in Northern Ireland. They do not include any entertainment or vacation travel costs. If the student is accepted into a catered residential college providing full board, substitute the accommodation supplemental (detailed in the Supplemental Charges section) for the meal cost estimate above.

The above numbers are general estimates of expenses during a program abroad. We recommend taking into account your current spending habits, the cost of living in your host country and the current exchange rate. Your IFSA-Butler program advisor can be helpful as you attempt to work on a personal budget for your experience abroad.
